KCA Board Elects New President

At a recent meeting of the Kansas Cattlemen's Association Board, The Board of Directors elected Ken Winter of Dodge City as President. Winter is the owner of Winter Feed Yard and has been in the cattle business his entire life. This is Winter's second term on the KCA Board and previously served as President in 2002.

"I am looking forward to continuing to work for the independent cattlemen and women of Kansas. KCA has an excellent board for 2007, one that is focused on industry concerns and especially the upcoming Farm Bill. One of my goals for 2007 is to convince producers that association membership and support are essential to making sure that industry concerns are addressed. A unified voice by grassroots producers will be listened to. Current membership in livestock associations across the country is but a fraction of actual producers. I cannot believe that the majority of producers don't care or think that their individual voices are as effective as a combined voice will be through an association," stated Winter.

The Board also elected David Pfrang of Holton as the Vice President and Daryl Larson of McPherson as Secretary/Treasurer.
